

LOSS ADJUSTING SERVICES IN ITALY

Whether your problem concerns a claim involving a confidential commercial or sensitive military contract I have the relevant experience.

I have dealt with claims and arbitrations arising from the contamination in edible products at European level. My training includes team experience in the field in Italy in investigating contaminated animal foodstuffs giving rise to complex quantum, handling and liability issues.

Sunflower oil: contamination with mineral oil from Ukraine

The European Commission asked EFSA on 28 April to provide scientific advice on the sunflower oil contamination with mineral oil from the Ukraine that was dispatched to several European Union countries, notified through the European alert system.

EFSA's in-house experts were asked to look at the preliminary data available in order to provide scientific support to risk managers on this issue. EFSA has not made a risk assessment, as there is little data available at the moment. EFSA has provided technical support to the Commission by identifying different exposure scenarios, depending on the type of oils concerned. When new data becomes available, if necessary, EFSA will provide further technical support to the Commission.

My experience in major property damage by fire, earthquake and flood of national proportions spans decades. I will be pleased to provide further details of my loss adjusting and claims credentials.

I trained and qualified in the United Kingdom as a Chartered Loss Adjuster, Chartered Insurance Practitioner and qualified linguist. I have lived and worked in Italy permanently since 1981.

I also undertake due diligence audits, cost analysis, tender verification exercises and much more.

My geographical area of work is within European Union countries.

Please feel free to contact me on the details shown below.

